Meeting This Moral Moment

The Stakes for Our Democracy Will Demand What NETWORK Has to Offer

Laurie Carafone

Last year was an unimaginably tough year for anyone who loves and cherishes the promise of an inclusive and pluralistic democracy, as the U.S. has at different times aspired to be. We experienced a daily deluge of immoral, racist, and oppressive government actions, unleashed by an administration whose recklessness and cruel policy agenda are an assault on the values that NETWORK and justice-seekers everywhere hold dear.

We are living history, and the NETWORK community must—and will—meet the moment in 2026. We are clear-eyed and speak the truth of what is happening: the Trump administration is rapidly consolidating authoritarian power to shamelessly enrich themselves and the corporations and billionaires who bend the knee and take from the people.

The three branches of our government are meant to ensure a check on executive power. But Congress and the Supreme Court are allowing unchecked presidential power to drag our country toward dictatorship. We know there is another way. With a functioning democracy, we can and will have the collective capacity to achieve policies that support ourselves, our families, and our communities so that everyone can thrive.

NETWORK is reading the signs of the times and knows the stakes. Our north star is—and has been for a half century—our foundresses' mission to effect federal policy change for the common good. This advocacy can only continue to be effective if we have a functioning democracy, one where lawmakers are responsive to the people—including our community of advocates—rather than to an authoritarian leader.

Our work in 2026 cannot be business as usual. We need to do our part to save democracy with a focus on power building, policy impacts, voter engagement, free and fair elections, and a peaceful transition of power. If we lose our democracy to dictatorship, we lose the conditions necessary for NETWORK to do our sacred work for good. With all of you, we will meet this existential moment.

We know we are prepared because of all you have shown up over and over again for justice. Throughout last year's chaos, you, our NETWORK community, responded with clarity and resolve. You are a wise, outspoken, and emphatic moral voice with the proven integrity and expertise that so many people in our country rely on and trust.

At every turn, you met this moral moment — advocating for policies that protect human dignity, organizing and accompanying members of your community, amplifying our Spirit-filled message, and directly supporting and sustaining us in our work.

There is much to do in this midterm election year, with so much at stake for our issues and our democracy. The poet Mary Oliver, in her poem “The Summer Day,” writes, “Tell me, what else should I have done?... Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”

At NETWORK, we are going to make the most of our lives in 2026, together. We will not do anything alone — it will take many people and organizations doing their own part to succeed. But we must do our part with a clear understanding of our gifts and goals. So what is ours to do as NETWORK?

With a functioning democracy, we can and will have the collective capacity to achieve policies that support ourselves, our families, and our communities so that everyone can thrive.

First, we need to reach more Catholics — calling in all who value living in a free society, no matter what other policy positions or beliefs we hold. We need to communicate clearly and effectively, grounding our work in the Catholic Social Justice teaching that undergirds all of NETWORK's values.

Second, we need to strengthen our advocacy effectiveness to respond to this unique moment. We will need to train and focus our advocates on strategic actions essential to preserving democracy.

Third, we need to continue our core issues advocacy. It is critical that we keep this going so that we can pressure lawmakers to stave off further harm and prepare the way for gains we can make when we have a functioning three-branch government.

We know that our country needs what NETWORK has to offer—not only our advocacy, but the vision of universal human thriving that our policy agenda offers. These are the gifts we offer now, at this moral moment. Thank you for being an essential part of this community, contributing in whatever way is right for you. We are in this together.

Laurie Carafone is NETWORK's Executive Director.

Notable Quotables

What justice-seekers have been saying this quarter

“Every day, we see how programs like the ACA and Medicaid allow families across the U.S. to get and stay healthy, see the doctor, and afford eyeglasses for their kids. We know the ACA premium tax credits work. We see how they make our communities healthier, more stable, and more vibrant.”

— Catholic Sisters and Associates in a letter to Congress, Oct. 22, 2025

“This has now turned to what our greatest fear is ... around ICE, that this will be used as an anti-civilian force that has no accountability.”

— Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez in response to the killing of Renee Good by an Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agent in Minneapolis.

“Every voter registration represents a person who is ready to hold people in power accountable. Every ballot cast is a reminder that this country belongs to all of us, not just the privileged few.”

— NETWORK Coston Fellow Mia Lazo, in a Nov. 5, 2025 reflection for NETWORK

“We can do better. Health and nutrition are basic human rights... a workable solution is at hand.”

— NETWORK Fellow Ralph McCloud at the People's Pantry “While They Build Ballrooms, We Feed the People” event on Oct. 30, 2025

“Millions of Americans who gained affordable health care will either lose insurance or pay significantly higher premiums. ... Why is there money for weapons, protection for legislators, prisons and detention centers, but not for the health of children, seniors, and working-class citizens?”

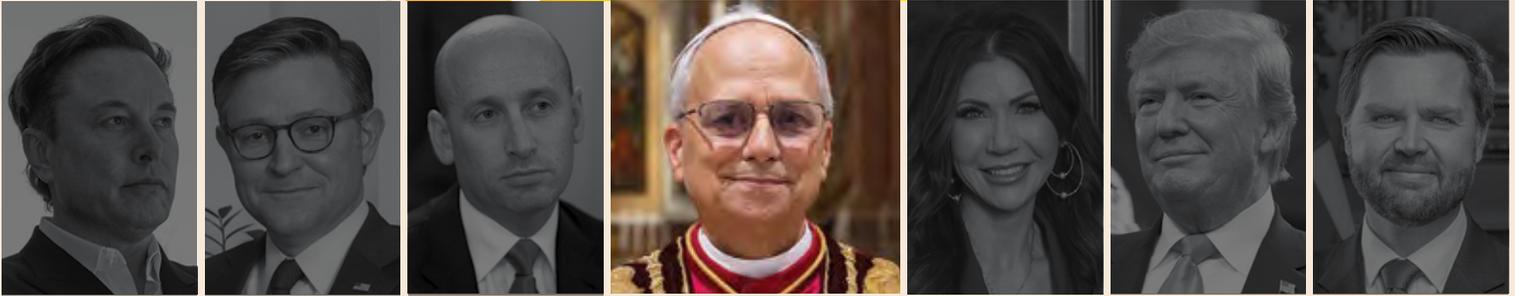

— NETWORK supporter Sr. Carren Herring in a Letter to the Editor published in the Cincinnati Enquirer edition on Nov. 20, 2025

“Those inspired by true charity know full well that almsgiving does not absolve the competent authorities of their responsibilities, eliminate the duty of government institutions to care for the poor, or detract from rightful efforts to ensure justice.”

— Pope Leo XIV in his first apostolic exhortation, Dilexi Te, signed on Oct. 4, 2025

“These are not demands of greed. These are demands for decency. These are workers who are simply [asking] to be treated with the respect that they deserve.”

— New York City Mayor-Elect Zohran Mamdani joining striking Starbucks workers, Dec. 1, 2025

Feast or Fascism

Authoritarian and Economic Oppression Perpetuate One Another, and Catholic Social Justice Offers the Antidote

BY DON CLEMMER

The first year of the second Trump administration saw an alarming abandonment of the traditional checks and balances that have guarded against the descent of U.S. democracy into an authoritarian state. These included brazenly illegal acts by the executive branch with no oversight or accountability; aggressively cruel immigration enforcement designed to strike terror in communities; targeted prosecutions of President Trump's political adversaries; and countless other offenses.

But alongside these horrors, another factor surfaced time and again: the economic oppression that accompanies the corruption and intentional inequity of an authoritarian regime. Whether it's the shutdown of USAID, trillions in tax cuts for the ultra-wealthy while gutting food and healthcare programs from the federal budget, or the invasion of a sovereign country while openly planning to harvest its oil reserves, the consolidation of absolute power is both a cause and effect of the stratospheric divide between the ultra-rich and everyone else.

"We're in big trouble," Pope Leo said about the prospect of Elon Musk becoming the world's first trillionaire. Following the stunning election of a U.S.-born pope, the first major teaching document from Pope Leo XIV focused on love for people impacted by poverty. In that document, Dilexi Te, the pope cites the words of Pope Francis about economic inequity: "A new tyranny is being born, invisible and often virtual, which unilateral-ly and relentlessly imposes its own laws and rules."

'Made poor'

"Almost all people in the U.S. have experienced dehumanization from our nation's current systems of community-harming oppression. Their main tools are fear, scarcity, and isolation," says NETWORK Executive Director Laurie Carafone. She notes that the right-wing media ecosystem pushes narratives promoting resource hoarding, hatred, racism, sexism, and xenophobia. The cultural fallout has been predictably disastrous.

“We are made poor when we no longer see our neighbor as ourselves; when we no longer allow ourselves to be open to seeing our own poverty and when we physically isolate those society identifies as materially poor,” says says Jennifer Stallbaumer-Rouyer, a social worker and NETWORK advocate in Kansas City, Missouri. “When we look behind this person, however, we see an entire system that perpetuates poverty and the lies that accompany it.”

Sr. Beatrice Haines

“Most troubling to me is the obvious effort to demonize immigrants,” says Sr. Beatrice Haines, OLMV, based in Huntington, Indiana. She sees this as a clear “effort to disparage people of color and create an ‘us versus them’ situation. ‘They’ then are perceived as the cause of my economic situation.” She cites the passage of the GOP’s “Big Bad Budget Bill” as one bitter fruit of this narrative.

NETWORK Fellow Ralph McCloud, who led the Catholic Campaign for Human Development—the U.S. bishops’ domestic anti-poverty program—for 16 years, has encountered attitudes against marginalized communities and sees clearly how they manifest in U.S. politics.

“There is the temptation that God intends for people to be poor, minorities to be separate, wars to happen, famine to exist, and that it is all happening because it is God’s will and there is nothing that can be done. So we live in apathy, despair, and, in some cases, pious and devout glee.”

Letting these attitudes fester in politics and culture, McCloud says, directly led to the erosion of the foundational systems of U.S. democracy.

“We neglected to recognize that our systems are so fragile that without intentional and deliberate care, authoritarian and selfish stakeholders can attack them and strategically place themselves in positions of power that can destroy decades of progress and erase significant gains.”

NETWORK Executive Director Laurie Carafone stands with NETWORK Fellow Ralph McCloud at the October 30 People’s Pantry event in front of the USDA in Washington. NETWORK, Federal Unionist Network, Indivisible, and Free DC sponsored the event in solidarity with federal employees and people across the country who are suffering.

The pope and some hope

As the leading American voice providing a moral vision on the world stage, Pope Leo offers hope with his witness and a critique of the ideas that have enabled the dangerous state of his home country’s political moment.

“At a time when we see a rise in Christian nationalist sentiment in the U.S. and we are seeing domestic hunger and the number of people who can no longer afford healthcare increase

“We are made poor when we no longer see our neighbor as ourselves.”

JENNIFER STALLBAUMER-ROUYER

“Almost all people in the U.S. have experienced dehumanization from our nation’s current systems of community-harming oppression.”

LAURIE CARAFONE

RALPH MCLOUD

“We neglected to recognize that our systems are so fragile that without intentional and deliberate care, authoritarian and selfish stakeholders can attack them and strategically place themselves in positions of power that can destroy decades of progress and erase significant gains.”

... it is crucial that a clear moral teaching about poverty come from the highest authority in the church,” says Lexington, Kentucky Bishop John Stowe, OFM Conv.

“Our English-speaking pope has provided a document ... with crystal clarity for American readers that asserts ... that indifference to people in need anywhere in the world is contrary to our faith.”

Perhaps most crucially, Pope Leo directly takes on the economic philosophies that have led this government to abdicate its responsibility to promote the thriving of all people through policy.

“At times, pseudo-scientific data are invoked to support the claim that a free market economy will automatically solve the problem of poverty,” the pope writes in Dilexi Te.

He adds, “[A]msgiving does not absolve the competent authorities of their responsibilities, eliminate the duty of government institutions to care for the poor, or detract from rightful efforts to ensure justice.”

Committing U.S. politics to a sense of the common good and universal solidarity, necessary to defeating an authoritarian regime, requires the same actions as taking on fascism directly.

“Countering all this destruction fueled by fear, scapegoating, and isolation requires real efforts to forge strong community,” says Carafone.

Rooted in her community, Stallbaumer-Rouyer hasn’t given up on the prospect of recovering a better politics.

“I have hope for re-imagining something different that can be forged out of recognition, repentance, reconciliation, and solidarity. This work is a marathon, not a sprint,” she says. “If we look beyond ourselves and our given situation, we might just see a flash of abundance, not scarcity. We will see that we are all in need of care and filling up.”

For the Long Haul

Practicing the Active Virtue of Hope in a Time of Crisis

During my community's recent annual meeting, we started our time together with a reflection on hope and beauty offered by our chaplain. At lunch that day, our table conversation continued, and one of my sisters turned to me and said, "I don't know how you stay hopeful, doing the work you do."

She was referring to the terrible budget bill that was, at the time, on the threshold of passing the Senate. She was referring to the masked U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents kidnapping people from streets across our country. She was referring to our nation's descent into fascism and authoritarianism.

And I understand why it's hard to stay hopeful. The damages are real. People will lose their lives. People are already being torn out of their communities, and it will only get worse as ICE's budget just got a massive increase. Sometimes I get lost in those realities, too.

We owe it to ourselves, our family and friends, and our neighbors who have been pushed to the margins of our society to remain hopeful because that hope is what keeps us able to continue fighting for the liberation of all creation. To stay hopeful, we have to stay active and grounded in community. We have to tell the truth.

Yet I stay hopeful because I see reasons to be hopeful every day. I see people waking up. Our local "No Kings" rally on June 14 had well over twice as many people attend as the "Hands Off" rally did just a few months before — nearly 1,000 people showed up in Terre Haute, Indiana.

I see people jumping in to learn new skills, to do things they've never done before because they know that the stakes are so high that they have to do something.

I've seen community threads wind tighter as people gather to grieve, to build, to fight and to celebrate.

Together, we have built community among people who come together to fight back against authoritarianism and build a community of mutual care in our own backyards.

We are fighting back in big ways and small ways. We are refusing to let the fascists win.

I see it across the country every day through my daily work with NETWORK. I work closely with passionate groups of individuals across six states who have had meetings with legislators, who have coordinated rallies and local prayer vigils, who have written letters to the editor and taken to social media to advocate for an economy that works for all of us.

Together, NETWORK Advocates made nearly 2,500 calls to members of Congress about the budget bill, had more than 150 meetings with congressional staffers, had 12 letters to the editor or op-eds published in their local newspapers, coordinated or co-sponsored local prayer vigils and rallies, and showed up in droves to local events in their own communities.

We often talk at NETWORK about hope as an active virtue, and it's not an empty platitude. Perhaps I'm actually in a uniquely privileged position to be able to see on a daily basis all the reasons to be hopeful in the midst of such tragedy.

I'm reminded of a story Christopher Pramuk, one of my former professors, told me when I interviewed him recently for an episode of my community's JUSTus podcast. He shared a writing assignment he offered to some students of his. He asked the question about Billie Holiday's song "Strange Fruit," about whether there was anything hopeful in the song. One student reflected that there was nothing hopeful in the song but that singing the song — telling the truth — was itself a hopeful act. He later learned that this student was a survivor of sex trafficking, a fact that I think makes her reflection all the more potent.

We owe it to ourselves, our family and friends, and our neighbors who have been pushed to the margins of our society to remain hopeful because that hope is what keeps us able to continue fighting for the liberation of all creation. To stay hopeful, we have to stay active and grounded in community. We have to tell the truth.

And when we defeat the fascists, there will be work to do to rebuild a society that truly works for all. We can't go back to business as usual — there was already too much devastation in the world before the fascists took over. Are you in it with me for the long haul?

A Year in Reverse

Chaos, Crisis, and Complicity

Holding the White House, the Senate, and the House of Representatives offers a political party a chance to achieve historic legislative goals. But the first session of the 119th Congress instead saw the Trump administration take centerstage, issuing an onslaught of constitutionally questionable executive actions and dictating what issues moved forward in Congress. Rather than function as an independent branch of government, the Republican-controlled Congress gave up its power and stayed in lockstep with the Administration.

In the first half of 2025, the White House engaged in a “shock and awe” strategy: a cascade of executive orders designed to remake the federal government without authorization of Congress. First was the “Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE),” led by Elon Musk, whose unvetted staff had unfettered access to federal agencies, as well as our country’s most sensitive information.

Republicans in Congress offered no public resistance to this destruction, and their silence grew louder as the Administration decimated federal agencies, zeroed out spending appropriated by Congress, engaged in mass firings of civil servants, and harassed public officials who refused to take direction from the president.

The first action taken by Congress was passing the Laken Riley Act. Debate on the bill repeated unfounded rhetoric associating immigrants with violent crime. The law now serves as a legal framework exploited by the Department of Homeland Security to bypass basic due process rights for immigrants in terrifying raids and kidnappings across the country.

In March, the bill to fund the federal government through September was a partisan proposal that added money for defense spending, slashed funds for vital human needs programs, and cut funds for the District of Columbia. House leaders worked closely with the Administration to pass the bill with their slim majority, then sent all House members back to their districts to try to force the Senate to pass the bill without changes. Their cruel strategy worked, with Senate Democrats providing votes for final passage.

The signature legislative achievement of the Trump administration and leaders in Congress was the budget bill signed into law on July 4, which contained Trump’s two major spending objectives: a $4 trillion tax cut for large corporations and wealthy donors, as well as $170 billion of new funding for a major expansion of deportation and detention infrastructure.

In the budget law, Republicans paid for tax cuts for the rich and the deportation of our neighbors by gutting healthcare and food programs. They cut $1.1 trillion from Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act. It is the largest rollback of federal support for health care in U.S. history. Congress also cut the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP)—our country’s largest investment in food security—by $187 billion. The new budget law balloons the deficit by over $3 trillion.

Conflict arose in September over the enhanced Affordable Care Act (ACA) premium tax credits, set to expire at the end of 2025. These credits make healthcare affordable for 24 million people, and premiums for 2026 were already set to increase by at least 114 percent. Democrats attempted to use a funding bill—which are traditionally bipartisan—to fix the crisis before ACA enrollment began in November. Republican leaders and the Trump administration refused to act. Speaker Mike Johnson kept the House on recess for an unprecedented eight weeks, only calling members back to vote on a partisan stopgap bill to end the shutdown without saving the tax credits.

Democrats in the Senate urged their Republican colleagues to pass a funding bill with an extension of the credit. To pressure Senate Democrats to accept the partisan bill, the Administration, for the first time in history, illegally withheld food assistance for hungry people, stopped payments to low-income people for heating assistance, and more.

Republicans in Congress remained silent about the Administration’s cruel and illegal actions. A handful of Democrats in the Senate finally relented and voted to open the government. Meanwhile, the healthcare issue remained unresolved and 24 million working people entered 2026 with skyrocketing health costs.

Republican leaders in Congress failed the American people this year. They prioritized the interests of the wealthy over everyone else. They remained silent as the president abused his powers, hypermilitarized our cities, and targeted political opponents for prosecution. Their silence and complicity weakened our democracy.

SENATE VOTES

1 Laken Riley Act (S.5) - Vote #7

The bill mandates the unnecessary apprehension and detention of undocumented immigrants convicted of or only arrested for certain crimes, including low-level misdemeanor offenses such as shoplifting, while expanding state and local authority to sue the federal government for failure to enforce immigration laws. U.S. immigration law already mandates detention of people who have committed serious crimes.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed Senate on July 1, 2025, 50–50 with Vice President voting Yea

2 Full-Year Continuing Appropriations and Extensions Act, 2025 (H.R.1968) - Vote #133

H.R. 1968 funded the federal government through September 30, 2025. The bill increased defense spending while cutting non-defense spending, fostering underinvestment in social programs, public health, education, and other critical services. The bill also restricted the District of Columbia from spending $1 billion of its local budget for FY2025.

NETWORK position: Nay

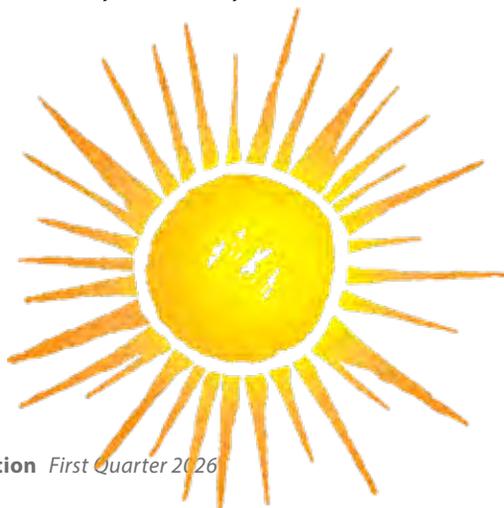

Passed Senate on March 14, 2025, 54–46

3 TAKE IT DOWN Act (S.146) - Vote #104

The Dissemination of Deepfake Intimate Images Act seeks to combat the nonconsensual distribution of digitally altered or sexually explicit “deepfake” images—especially those involving minors or public figures—by making it a federal crime to knowingly publish, or threaten to publish, online AI-generated deepfakes. The bill establishes criminal penalties, authorizes victims to seek civil damages, and directs online platforms to remove reported material within 48 hours. It is the first successful federal bill to regulate frontier AI.

NETWORK position: Yea

Passed Senate on February 13, 2025, by Unanimous Consent

4 An act to provide for reconciliation pursuant to Title II of H. Con. Res. 14 (H.R.1) - Vote #372

This sweeping 2025 reconciliation package permanently extended 2017 tax cuts for wealthy individuals and large corporations costing $5 trillion. It expanded funding for immigration enforcement, border infrastructure, and deportation operations by over $170 billion. It partially paid for this by making cuts to vital healthcare and food programs. Programs impacted by cuts were SNAP, by $187 billion, and Medicaid and the Affordable Care Act, by $1 trillion. The bill also ended the Direct File program, a free tax preparation program that helped low-income taxpayers who qualify to access the Child Tax Credit and the Earned Income Tax Credit.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed Senate on July 1, 2025, 50–50 with Vice President voting Yea

5 Rescissions Act of 2025 (H.R.4) - Vote #411

This bill rescinded $115 billion in previously appropriated funds on major domestic initiatives including climate and clean energy programs from the Inflation Reduction Act, IRS modernization funds, and student-debt relief allocations. Appropriations for several international hunger, displacement, and refugee accounts were also rescinded. Bipartisan majorities of Congress had approved these funds through the appropriations process.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed Senate on July 17, 2025, 51–48

6 Continuing Appropriations, Agriculture, Legislative Branch, Military Construction and Veterans Affairs, and Extensions Act, 2026 (H.R.5371) - Vote #618

This bill was a short-term stopgap funding measure enacted to end the federal government shutdown. The bill temporarily extended federal agency funding at FY 2025 levels through January 2026. It failed, however, to extend the enhanced Affordable Care Act premium tax credits that expired at the end of 2025. This impacts access to healthcare for 24 million American. It also failed to put guardrails in place to prevent the president from impounding federal funds that communities are owed.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed Senate on November 10, 2025, 60–40

7 Lower Health Care Costs Act (S.3385) - Vote #644

This is a bill to extend the enhanced Affordable Care Act premium tax credit for 3 years.

HOUSE VOTES

1 Laken Riley Act (S.5) - Vote #23

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on January 22, 2025, 263–156

2 Full-Year Continuing Appropriations and Extensions Act, 2025 (H.R.1968) - Vote #70

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed March 11, 2025, 217–213

3 SAVE Act (H.R.22) - Vote #102

This legislation would require all Americans to prove their citizenship status by presenting documentation—in person—when registering to vote or updating their voter registration information. Only two forms of documentation are acceptable: a passport or birth certificate. 140 million American citizens do not possess a passport, and as many as 69 million women who have taken their spouse's name do not have a birth certificate matching their legal name. Driver's licenses—including REAL IDs—as well military or tribal IDs are not sufficient forms of documentation to prove citizenship. The “in person” requirement prevents voter registration by mail; ends voter registration drives; and eliminates online voter registration.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on April 10, 2025, 220–208

4 TAKE IT DOWN Act (S.146) - Vote #104

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Yea

Passed House on April 2025, 2025, 409–2

5 An act to provide for reconciliation pursuant to Title II of H. Con. Res. 14 (H.R.1) - Vote #190

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on July 3, 2025, 218–214

6 Rescissions Act of 2025 (H.R. 4) - Vote #168

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on June 12, 2025, 214–212

7 DC Criminal Reforms to Immediately Make Everyone Safe Act of 2025 (H.R.4922) - Vote #270

The bill allows Congress to block or amend D.C. laws related to criminal justice without Home Rule procedures. The bill also imposes new federal mandates on local prosecution, sentencing, and pretrial detention. Specifically, it expands mandatory minimum sentences, limits the D.C. Council's authority to reform penalties or early-release policies, and requires the U.S. Attorney for D.C. to prioritize certain violent-crime prosecutions.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on September 16, 2025, 240–179

8 Continuing Appropriations, Agriculture, Legislative Branch, Military Construction and Veterans Affairs, and Extensions Act, 2026 (H.R.5371) - Vote #285

See Page 12 for description.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on November 12, 2025, 222–209

9 PERMIT Act (H.R.3898) - Vote #330

This bill would weaken the Clean Water Act by limiting water quality certifications to a narrow set of federal criteria and blocking consideration of cumulative pollution, downstream harms, or environmental justice impacts. It imposes rushed deadlines that favor industry and restricts the legal grounds on which harmful permits can be challenged. The bill creates loopholes—exempting agricultural runoff and pesticide applications, removing protections from wetlands, and raising thresholds for oil-spill prevention. These changes would strip federal oversight from vast portions of the nation's waters, weaken accountability, and increase risks to drinking water, ecosystems, and frontline communities.

NETWORK position: Nay

Passed House on December 11, 2025, 221–205

10 Protect America's Workforce Act (H.R.2550) - Vote #332

This bill nullifies President Trump's executive order that stripped collective bargaining rights from large portions of the federal workforce and restores federal employees' right to union representation and collective bargaining. The bill also ensures that federal labor-management agreements in effect before the executive order remain valid through their agreed terms.

NETWORK position: Yea

Passed House on December 11, 2025, 231–195

The name "Bread & Roses" is inspired by the 1912 mill strike in Lawrence, Massachusetts. Women from dozens of immigrant communities united to call for "bread and roses"—not only for life's basic necessities, but also for dignity, beauty, and the chance to flourish.

Imagining a More Just Tomorrow

The future we hope for is built by the values we choose to carry forward today. Through a planned gift, your commitment to justice becomes part of a lasting legacy of hope.

Planned gifts, such as bequests or gifts directed through beneficiary designations, can be a meaningful way for you to ensure your commitment to justice endures through NETWORK's political ministry for many years to come.

Supporters who make planned gifts are invited to join the Bread & Roses Society, honoring those whose generosity ensures NETWORK can continue advocating for human dignity and thriving communities.

What feels like a small, thoughtful choice today becomes a lasting gift of hope for the future of our justice movement.

Setting up a planned gift can be as simple as adding NETWORK's name and Tax ID in a line in a form, or including a sentence or two in your will.

You can contact me directly, and I would be happy to support your reflection and planning process. Requesting information does not obligate you to make a gift, and all inquiries are held in confidence.

For more information, please visit networklobby.org/plannedgiving. Thank you for joining us in envisioning—and acting for—a Beloved Community.

NETWORK's Dilexi Te Reflection Guide

In his Apostolic Exhortation, Dilexi Te, Pope Leo XIV calls us to end poverty and build a future where everyone thrives www.networkadvocates.org/dilexi-te/

Pope Leo XIV named his first major teaching document Dilexi Te, which is Latin for "I have loved you." In it, he invites us to reject the "empire of money" and the corrupt system that creates poverty. The pope calls us to join in loving solidarity to "honor the image of God and build a better society." Pope Leo signed Dilexi Te on the feast of St. Francis of Assisi, October 4, 2025.

NETWORK's Dilexi Te Reflection Guide offers Spirit-filled justice-seekers a way to reflect on how the pope's call guides and nourishes our work, as well as how we can live out this call in our homes, parishes, and communities across our country.

Explore NETWORK's reflections on each chapter of Dilexi Te and share the guide with friends, family, and church groups. You can also download a PDF of the guide for easy sharing!
